

Family Code of the Russian Federation

Article 51. Entry of the child's parents in the register of births

4. Persons who are married and have given their consent in writing form to the application method of artificial insemination or implantation of an embryo, in case of birth at the child's use of these methods is recorded by his parents in the book birth records.

Persons who are married to each other and have given their consent in writing form to implantation of an embryo to another woman for the purpose of carrying it can be recorded parents of the child only with the consent of the woman who gave birth to the child (surrogate mother).

Article 52. Contesting paternity (motherhood)

3. The spouse who has given, in the manner prescribed by law, consent in writing form to the use of the method of artificial insemination or for the implantation of an embryo, has not the right to refer to these circumstances when challenging paternity.

Spouses who have consented to implantation of an embryo to another woman, and a surrogate mother (part two of paragraph 4 of Article 51 of this Code) is not entitled to challenging maternity and paternity after the parents have entered the record's book births to refer to these circumstances.